

Financial Advisor Meeting Checklist

DOCUMENTS TO CONSIDER BRINGING ALONG

To help prepare for your meeting, we've created a checklist of documents to consider bringing with you. Skip over ones that don't apply to your situation. If in doubt over a particular item, bring it along, and we'll help you sort it out.

- Drivers License
 - Investment account statements
 - Retirement account statements including 401(k) and 403(b) accounts
 - Pension estimates
 - Annuity statements
 - Life/Long-term Care/Disability insurance policy information
 - Home values and information on any real estate holdings
 - Mortgage information
 - Student loan statements
 - Value/appraisal of significant personal property like boats and vehicles
 - Business valuations (if you own your own business)
 - Stock option plans
 - Social security statements
 - Information for beneficiary updates or changes: Beneficiary's full name, address, phone number and date of birth.

Bonus:

Consider these two items prior to the meeting with an advisor. Writing out and sharing your thoughts would be helpful.

- How would you describe your risk tolerance as it relates to investing?
- What do you want to achieve with your financial assets?
